TASTING NOTES

Unlike most white grape varieties, the Pinot Grigio berry is not green; smoke, slate-grey, pewter or tarnished silver would better describe the colour. The name 'Argento', meaning silver in Italian, not only reflects the colour of the Pinot Grigio's berries, but also the qualities of something worth looking for, just like silver.

A bouquet of honeysuckle, wildflower, honeydew melon and ripe pears, this wine gives way to refreshing light lemon citrus flavours with a clean, tight mineral length. An excellent match with a host of foods and not out of place long after the entree.
